OUR NEW PRESIDENT.

Benjamin Harrison, agreeably with the will of the people expressed in November last, was inaugurated President on Monday in the presence of an immense throng of his countrymen, the oath of office being administered by Chief Justice Fuller. After the oath was taken the President read his Inaugural address, which, like all his sayings, abounds in plain English, which cannot be misunderstood, or misconstrued by the Nations of Europe, particularly by Germany. He speaks very decidedly in favor of protection to our home industries, which was the one great principle before the people last year, and upon which the battle in November was almost solely fought. He asks the people of the Southern States to adopt the Protection and Constitutional principles of Clay and Webster, and educate the blacks in manufacturing and trade employments, believing they can be made in valuable allies of the whites in building up the manufactures and industries of that portion of our country. He rejects the suggestion of having a special policy for any section of the country, and believes that our laws should be equal, and fair to every section; no one having the right to say which laws he will obey, any more than the Executive has to say which he will enforce. In this connection the President says:

"The evil example of permitting individuals, corporations or communities to nullify laws because they cross some selfish or local interests or prejudices, is full of danger, not only to the nation at large, but much more to those who use this pernicious expedient to escape their just obligations or to obtain an unjust advantage over others."

He thinks the naturalization laws should be amended, to the end that the character of those wishing to become citizens should be known to be reputable before being admitted to the rights and privileges of American citizenship.

He re-affirms the Monroe doctrine in unmistakable language, a warning to "hands off in our block." While respecting the rights of other nations in all parts of the world, he proposes to see that the rights of American citizens, wherever located, and all treaty obligations, are also fully guarded, which means that the American eagle will keep Samoa under its protection.

He is sound on civil service reform, and in reference to appointments he says:

"Honorable party service will certainly not be esteemed by me a disqualification for public office, but it will in no case be allowed to serve as a shield of official negligence, incompetency or delinquency. It is entirely creditable to seek public office by proper methods and with proper motives, and all applicants will be treated with consideration, but I shall need, and the heads of departments will need time for inquiry and deliberation. Persistent importunity will not, therefore, be the best support of application for office."

He thinks our revenues can be reduced without attacking the protective tariff and injuring our domestic industries.

His sympathies are with the people in the building up of a new navy, and establishing and fostering lines of American steamships and consequent increase of our commercial relations.

He believes that the pension laws should be made to give full and discriminating relief to the veterans of the war.

He is gratified to notice so much interest taken throughout the country in favor of reform in our election laws, looking to a free ballot and an honest count.

He closed with a patriotic appeal to his countrymen to "exalt in patriotism and moderate our party contentions." It is an excellent address, and should be read by all who feel an interest in our country's welfare and greatness, and those who do not feel such a concern should get out of it.

Let us believe that we are to have a true-blue American Administration, and one that will unite the country as it has not been for nearly thirty years.

MODESTY.—The Ontario (Los Angeles county) Record says that H. A. Lewis, of Topeka, Kansas, representing a canning establishment, is looking up the prospects there for a removal of the plant to that or some other enterprising town. He simply asks for a subscription sufficient to cover the expense of the removal. Suitable grounds and about half the cost of a $3,000 building would be satisfactory.

Perhaps the extreme modesty of the Topekan forbids him asking for a 160-acre orchard in full-bearing, and a few thousand tin cans, to be thrown in to make the "enterprise" a grand success. An enterprising concern like this should not be expected to buy its fruit, and perhaps the Spreckels, to encourage the "enterprise," will cheerfully donate a few tons of their best sugars. Such modesty should be rewarded.

At the Intelligence Bureau of the United States Navy Department a large map shows, by colored tags, the present location of the world's war-vessels, which include 150 belonging to Great Britain, 100 to France, 40 to Germany, and 40 to the United States.

THE NEW CABINET.

The "Cabinet-makers" worked hard until Tuesday, when President Harrison completed his Cabinet and sent the names to the Senate, which confirmed them at once. It is composed of the following sound Republican timber:

James G. Blaine, Secretary of State. It is unnecessary to tell who he is.

William Windom, of Minnesota. Secretary of the Treasury. He occupied the same position under the lamented Garfield.

Redfield Proctor of Vermont, Secretary of War. He served with distinction during the war; has been Governor of Vermont, and held the delegation from that State solid for Harrison in the Chicago Convention.

Benjamin F. Tracy, of New York, Secretary of the Navy. He is a leading lawyer in Brooklyn, and was Beecher's counsel in the celebrated trial.

John W. Noble, of Missouri, Secretary of the Interior. Noble was Harrison's college chum. He went into the Union army a private and won a General's stars. He is 58 years old.

John Wanamaker, of Pennsylvania. Postmaster General. He is a prominent merchant of Philadelphia, and as he has been a victim of bad mail arrangements, he will see that the postal affairs of the country are properly conducted.

W. H. H Miller, of Indiana, Attorney General. He was Harrison's law partner, and one of the ablest lawyers in Indiana.

Jeremiah Rusk, of Wisconsin, Secretary of Agriculture. Rusk won a Brigadier General's commission in the Union army; was in Congress. He gained a National reputation while Governor of Wisconson by putting down the Anarchist riots in '86. He is 59.

A Terrible Misfortune.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nerveless, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and long unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first the cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malaria disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and billiousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

A correspondent of the Voice says: The Morgan is the most profitable breed or class of horses for use of the ordinary farmer, because they have great power of endurance, are good on the road and farm, easily kept, not liable to disease, and live to a great age, if properly used. I have never seen any other breed that will stand the same amount of driving. Probably the month of May is the best time for dropping. It does not pay the ordinary farmer to own or breed thoroughbreds because he has not the capital to stock with, and it requires much expense to get them into notice to sell.

Manufacturer of Accir Brand Shirts, Collars, Cuff Shirt Fronts, Ladies' Collars and Lace Neckwear,

ALBANY, N. Y.

The latest shirt issued under the "Acorn" Brand is "THE WONDER," and it is also the best shirt ever made for the Trade.

The following are some of its principal points of excellence, a printed list of which is attached to each shirt:

1st—It has the finest and heaviest muslin ever put in a shirt, (Utica Nonpariel improved).

2—It has a 3-ply linen bosom.

3—It is of extra length.

4—It is reinforced, both back and front, extending and meeting under the arm where most needed.

5—It has the Tomlinson patent endless facing.

6—It is custom make and finish.

7—It cannot break or tear anywhere.

Like the Deacon's "one-hoss shay," it has no weak spot, and will never "give" anywhere, but, at the end of scores of years, it will dissolve into space—not a thread broken or a seam started.

Fathers will bequeath these shirts, purchased in early manhood, a priceless legacy to their children.

We expect a large demand for them to place in the corner stones of linen structures as evidence of the greatest triumph of modern civilization.

We are taking steps to put this crowning achievement of art into the "Acorn agencies in London, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg and Constantinople, when it can not fail of instant and permanent success.

BRIDGEPORT, MARCH 9, 1889.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

H. Marden and W. Ball, of Aurora, Nev., attended the masquerade, returning home on Wednesday. Mr. Marden has abandoned the Antelope mine at that place and will remove in a day or two to Redding, Cal.

THE MASQUERADE.

The masquerade ball at Bryant's Hall on Monday evening was largely attended, but a great many who have heretofore appeared in costume attended as spectators. While there were no elaborate and expensive costumes on the floor, all were well gotten up, and suited to the respective characters, and as a whole it was a successful entertainment. The music was furnished by C. L. Hayes, Thomas Coyle, Mrs. E. Brown, and George Kirkwood, bass viol, and was good. At 11 o'clock unmasking took place amid much merriment, and at midnight an excellent supper was served at the Allen House, and was well patronised. Among those in attendance were a number from the outside camps, and all enjoyed the affair, dancing being continued till 4:30 next morning.—The following were in costume:

SALUTE.—On Monday the Democrats and Republicans of Bridgeport jointly fired a National salute of thirty-eight guns, at noon, in honor of the inauguration of President Harrison, and one each for the coming States of North Dakota, South Dakoto, Montana and Washington. The firing squad—Samuel Hopkins, George Vansickle and John Westwood, Union veterans, fired rapidly and made it the best ever fired in this town.

NOTABLE.—It was notable that the Democrats were the first to hoist flags on Inauguration Day. In common with the Republicans, they rejoiced at the downfall of the boneless Bayard. There is nothing mean in the political atmosphere of Bridgeport.

BEATEN.—The millionaire sheepmen, who want to overrun our mountain counties with their sheep without paying a county license for conducting their business, have been signally beaten in the State Senate, where an amendment was offered to the County Government bill, to restrict the Supervisors to a license of 3 cents a head for sheep and 10 cents for cattle. A hot debate ensued, Senator Goucher making the strongest speech against the amendment, which was defeated, as were several other amendments of a like character. So stock men will have to pay a license or keep out of this county.

HELD FOR MURDER.—On Tuesday the examination of the Piute for the murder of Louis Sammann was commenced before Justice Hanson, District Attorney Hayes being assisted by W. H. Virden, the Piute being defended by W. O. Parker. Owing, perhaps, to the susceptibility of the entire Court and the prepossessing appearance of the fair prosecuting witness, the examination dragged along till Thursday afternoon, when the case was submitted. At noon on Friday Justice Hanson committed the prisoner for murder.

BRIDGEPORTERS ABROAD.—This office is in receipt of a letter from John Lynch, formerly of this town. He is a carpenter at the Anaconda Works, Montana. He says that Mrs. Parker has a first-class lodging house at Butte City; David Gilchrist, who worked for Peter Nye, during the building of the Allen House and other structures in this town, is foreman of the Anaconda Works, where the machinery of the Noonday plant is, J. B. Haggin being the principal owner. Charles Nye is at Butte City.

INSTALLATION.—Bodie Lodge No. 252, F. & A. M., installed its officers, for the ensuing year, on Thursday evening, as follows, Past Master Wm. Roush officiating: A. M. Phlegar, W. M.; G. K. Fitzpatrick, S. W.; G. H. Bump, J. W.; E. L. Benedict, Treasurer; W. H. Osborne, Secretary; J. E. Grant, S. D.; J. D. Watson, J. D.; W. Turley, Chaplain; Anson K. Burnside, Marshal; M. F. Smith, and Wm. Hick, Stewards; David Casey, Tyler. At the close, members and invited guests partook of a fine banquet.

THE SMALLPOX.—It being rumored that three new cases of smallpox had occurred at Hawthorne, the citizens of Bodie, at a meeting on Thursday, appointed Charles Kuhlmann, R. F. Fouke and Supervisor Stewart a Committee to disinfect the town. Doctors Goodson and Walker were appointed to inspect houses and report.

COUNTY TREASURY.—On the 4th, Chairman Hunewill, Auditor Kister and District Attorney Hayes counted the moneys in the Treasury and found therein the correct sum of $35,170 42.

A BODIE LIAR ABROAD.

The following "bosh" we find in the Portland Oregonian:

"A gentleman who has resided for several years in Mono county, in the Bodie section, and in the vicinity of Mono Lake, has lately arrived here and gives an account of the origin of the trouble with the Indians, which goes to substantiate the saying of some of the old settlers of this State that every outbreak of the Indians has been brought on by outrages they have suffered at the hands of the whites.

The Mono Lake region is a desolate, sterile section, much resembling the country around the Dead Sea. The waters of the lake are thoroughly impregnated with borax, salt and magnesia, and the only animal life found in it is a sort of worm, one-fourth inch long, resembling shrimp; it is of an oily nature, and forms, when blown ashore, combining with the alkaline water, a soapy mixture, and frequently a bank of suds, several feet in depth, is deposited on the shore.

The Piute Indians are very fond of these worms and eat all they get; in fact, with pine nuts, it is a staple food.

On the western shore lived a settler, Lou is Sammann, a Sclavonian, who had resided there twenty years, raising cattle on the stunted pasturage, and leading a lonely life.

Occasionally he would kill a Piute and cast the body into the lake, where it would soon petrify. This fact was well-known to the whites residing in that section, and the gentleman who gives this information says he has seen four of these bodies calmly reposing at the bottom of the lake. Sammann's avowed intention was to use the bodies, when sufficiently hardened, for hitching posts and doorsteps.

The Indians, however, were ignorant of Sammann's eccentricities, or, at least, had only heard unconfirmed stories of it. A few days before the killing, the Piutes were scooping worms from the surface, and in the vicinity of Sammann's place saw the bodies of their murdered brethren lying on the gravelly bottom.

Then the stories they heard were confirmed. They became frenzied for revenge, and going to Sammann's cabin, took him out and shot him through the heart, carried the body back, laid it on the bed and fired another shot through the brain. They then went several miles to a place where four Italians were and killed three, one escaping to Bodie."

We quote the above as evidence of the gullibility of the Oregonian, and that the boss liar—the "Gentleman from Bodie," has emigrated to Oregon. Mono Lake is bordered by the best of farms, and the grazing excellent. The waters of the lake in a few days would destroy every perishable thing, therefor the Indians and the big liar never saw petrified bodies in the lake. Sammann was shot to death by a cool Indian, and no Italian was murdered or shot at. If the waters of Mono Lake would petrify, the carcass of the "Gentleman from Bodie" should be thrown in, and thus the greatest liar of the Nineteenth Century could be utilized as a "hitching post or doorstep."

The big liar is a young man studying law, but the * * * * son should not practice at such an early age.

It is to be hoped the Legislature of this State will adjourn to-day sine die. Its limit expired on Thursday. It has been a disgrace to civilized humanity, and no member can refer to it with any credit.

The Union Pacific will run trains so as to reduce the time between New York and San Francisco to four days, and the Pennsylvania is preparing to beat that.

The Adams county, Iowa, court house was burned to the ground and fifty teachers, being examined, had a narrow escape

SHAM LARD FOR JEWS.

A New Product That the Hebrew Housewife Will Bless.

The Trouble Jewish Cooks Are Put To in Preparing Food—Substitutes for Lard—Goose Grease and Beef Fat Supplanted by Cotton-Seed Oil.

In a recent issue the editor of the Hebrew Journal made this statement:

"The other day I received a circular extolling the merits of kosher lard, that is, lard made from cotton oil. And now the only thing left for the ingenuity of the American inventor is to discover some process by which bacon and ham can be rendered kosher enough to meet with the approval of Rabbi Joseph himself."

To the Christian reader this probably has little significance, but it means a great deal to the Jew. For many generations the Jewish housewife has been beset with vexations and difficulties from which her Christian sister was altogether free. The Mosaic laws, with their minute regulations concerning both the preparation and serving of food, hampered her in many respects and made for her much labor that would, without their interference, have been unnecessary.

Of course, every body knows that pork does not enter into the Jewish house, but further than that the knowledge of only the minority outside the faith extends. Chapter xi. of Leviticus, contains a bewildering list of animals, fowl and fish that were declared unclean, but the restrictions that appear in the Bible were of little moment compared with the many that were added afterward by the rabbis or wise men, so that now the orthodox Jewess stands in continual fear of transgressing some of the regulations of the household as they are laid down by Rabbi Joseph and his kind.

The ban against the hog was pronounced in the sentence that forbade the eating of any animal that did not divide its hoof, and also chew its cud. This, of course, ruled against the fat of the hog also, and never has lard been used by any Jew who at all respected the tenets of his faith. In fact, many Jews who have departed from the ways of their fathers and who have thrown aside the traditions of their religion would not use lard under any circumstances, and it is undoubtedly true that while originally the flesh and fat of the hog were considered no worse than those of any other of the forbidden animals, they became many centuries ago the most sinful of all in the eyes of Israelites, and no more severe persecution was ever attempted by their enemies than when they forced the obnoxious food down their abhorrent throats. The New England wife who has made her toothsome doughnuts and flaky pie-crust with the aid of lard will no doubt wonder how any cook could ever get along without it; but the Jewish cook had to stand even greater privations. In making doughnuts and pie-crust she could use butter, provided, however, that these dainties were not eaten with any other dishes that contained meat or its products. The rabbis have interpreted the Mosaic laws to mean that flesh and milk must not be eaten at the same time, and the orthodox Jew will not eat them within an hour of each other. As butter is the product of milk, pie-crust containing butter could not, of course, be served at any meal in which meat was also a part. In frying meats their regulation prevented the cook from using butter or lard, and left her the choice between vegetable oils and beef fat.

Even in regard to these there were some restrictions. All beef fat is not kosher, or clean. All chalef, that is tallow, is not kosher. Chalef includes the fat around the intestines and kidneys. Miker, the fat between the intestines, is kosher, and this is what the strict Jewish cook has used mainly as long as there is any record. In European countries, where the Jews still live together for the most part in certain quarters of the cities, towns and villages, no other grease is used than the beef fat and goose grease. Polish Jews are especially addicted to the use of goose grease, which is very fine and much more expensive than lard. German Jews use beef fat more.

In either case the cook tries out all the fat she uses herself, and is thus doubly sure that it is kosher. In fact, unless the assurance can be given that it has been tried out in kosher vessels, and that it has not come in contact with foreign substances, it would be just as unclean as the hog itself. Of course, the trying out of the fat means a great deal of extra labor, and, what with keeping two sets of dishes, one for milk and one for meat, which were never allowed to touch each other, and observing all the other regulations, the Jewish housewife has nearly twice as much work as any other. In this country and some of the southern countries of Europe olive oil was used instead of fat, but not every body cares to have meals prepared in oil, and the use of it was confined within narrow limits.

The words of the editor of the Hebrew Journal will bring joy to the hearts of all Jewish cooks. They mean that one of their most vexatious trials in the past can now be obviated.

The New York Sun reporter who inspected this new "lard" found it very appetizing in appearance. It resembles ordinary lard. It has a slight odor of the oil, but it is not at all objectionable. It is said to be made of cotton-seed oil and pure beef fat. It sells at the same price as the best lard, but the manufacturers claim that it is cheaper, inasmuch as it requires a lesser quantity to accomplish the same purpose. It is necessary, in using it, to put it in a cold pan with the meat or other food, and let them get hot together. If it were put in a hot pan the oil and fat in the lard would separate. Although this lard is made for the use of the community at large, and is not controlled by Hebrews, the manufacturers have taken especial pains to disseminate their literature on the subject among the Jews of the country. Their pamphlets are all headed with the word "Kosher" in Hebrew characters. Editor Davis, of the Hebrew Journal, said to the reporter that the new lard was being extensively used by the Jews in this city, and that it was saving labor for a great many Jewish cooks.

Chinese Disguised as Squaws.

The smuggling of Chinese men and women from British America into United States territory is a lucrative business at various points along the border from Vancouver to Winnipeg. If the venture fails at one place it is renewed at another, and sooner or later the pilgrims get in. A new trick just discovered at Whatcom, W. T., has almost taken away the breath of the Federal officials, for they know that it must have been successful for a time. The large number of squaws coming into the country from British Columbia finally attracted the attention of an official, and he took a party of them to jail. On close inspection it was found that the creatures were not squaws at all, but able-bodied Chinamen who had painted and otherwise disguised themselves so as to resemble the typical Indian squaw of the frontier. In one instance two young and rather comely Chinese women came across in the garb of American women, but closely vailed. An ungallant official lifted their vails and found them out. These girls were billed through to San Francisco, and were worth to their owner about $2,000 apiece.

"LONG JOHN" ANECDOTES.

Some Good Stories That Recall Early Days in Chicago.

New stories occasionally crop out about "Long John" (the late John Wentworth), says the Chicago Tribune. "When he first came to Chicago he served for awhile as a clerk in one of the general stores here, and dealt out calico, molasses, shingle nails, flour and hair-pins with equal impartiality. Among the customers of the store was an Irishman who was a constant irritant to John's bump of animosity on account of a habit he had of always wanting 'some thing thrown in' whenever he paid a bill or made a purchase. So sure as he invested a dollar or paid a bill he requested the salesman to 'throw in' a lead pencil, or a pipe, or a paper of pins, or some other little article.

"One day this Irishman came into the store and, among other articles, purchased a two-gallon jug of molasses. As usual he wanted the investment topped off with a gift.

"'And now, Johnny, dear,' he said, for John was waiting on him, 'can't you throw in a small lot of chewing tobaccy?'

"John looked at the customer a moment in disgust, and then, a bright idea seizing him, he pulled the cork from the jug, crammed a lot of tobacco into the molasses, and handed it to the astonished Irishman with the remark that there was his 'tobaccy thrown in.'"

"I've heard a story regarding Wentworth and his connection with that store also," said a man to whom this was told. "And, by the way, it was the store conducted by John S. Hogan, in connection with the post-office. Hogan was the postmaster in 1837, and the mail wasn't heavy enough to worry him to any great extent. Whisky was cheap in those days, of course, and it was a custom with many of the store-keepers to keep a bottle or jug handy, at which their customers could refresh themselves. There was one old fellow who drank more of John Hogan's free whisky than, in Wentworth's view, the purchases he made warranted, and so he put up a job on the old man, who, as in the former story, was an Irishman. Pouring the real whisky from the customers' jug he inserted a liberal dose of raw alcohol, cayenne and ginger, and told the habitues of the store to look for results when the mixture touched the bottom of the drinker's stomach. Presently the Irishman came in and made the usual call upon the whisky jug. He poured out a generous tumblerful and gulped it down, while those in the secret prepared to enjoy the look of surprise and astonishment that would come over his face. The old man said nothing for awhile, but stood gazing at the empty glass. He rubbed his stomach and appeared to think. Then he turned around to the crowd, and with the tears running down his face and his voice filled with emotion, gasped out:

"'Holy—mither— of —Moses— byes—but that was good stuff!'"

GIRLS' CORRESPONDENCE.

Why Young Women Should Never Write Letters to Married Men.

A habit very common with a number of our thoughtless young ladies, who do a great many things quietly which they would not like to have known at home—a habit deserving of the strongest condemnation—is that of promiscuous correspondence with gentlemen, whether the gentleman be married or single.

The young ladies who find pleasure in this habit, says Harper's Bazar, use their pens on any pretext that turns up, and sometimes on no pretext at all. We are not really sure that this does not come less under the head of an undesirable habit than a sin, for there is an indelicacy about it quite amounting to immodesty, of which no girl who desires the respect of others will be guilty.

These young letter-writers, however, generally get a fit reward for their thoughtlessness or their culpability. If their correspondent is a man of systematic habits, their letters are docketed and ticketed, and his clerks have as much of a laugh over them as they wish; and if he is not a systematic man then those letters are at the mercy of any and every one who chooses to waste time in reading them. If their correspondent is a married man then his possession of their letters, even of the most trivial kind, places the writers at a disadvantage. Sooner or later the letters fall into the hands of his wife, who reads the folly or the wickedness with clear eyes, and holds the writer not only in contempt, but in her power.

No young girl can be sure that her correspondent is not merely amusing himself with her; and it is often the case that her letters are unwelcome and a nuisance, and he does not check them and does reply to them, not from interest in her, but merely manly chivalry. When the writer has recovered from her folly, or forgotten about her idleness, there is the letter ready to rise, like an awful betraying ghost, after she herself has possibly undergone a change, that will make her face burn, branded with shame, should the letter ever chance to confront her, or perhaps even the memory of it. Her motive may have been all innocence at the time, but it is left forever under doubt, and, in fact, except in the baldest business affair, there can be no excuse, and, therefore, no innocence, in the matter of a young girl's writing letters to any man not her personal relative or guardian, for about most of these letters there is an unmaidenliness almost amounting to indecency, and in the end her correspondent himself never thinks other than light of her on account of them.

Something New in Foot-Gear.

"Of all the astonishing inventions," says Invention, "that which is credited to a Japanese gentleman for walking on the waters is one of the most surprising. He is stated to have triumphed after twenty years' labor and sorrow, study and experiment, and has now applied for a patent. It is described as something in the nature of foot-gear, made of iron, paper, gum-elastic and wood, elliptical in shape, having guttapercha tubes and a life-belt attached. It is not announced how locomotion is to be achieved, but it is said that three miles an hour will be the pace. The apparatus weighs two and one-half pounds only, and the wearer will be able to carry a load of twenty-five pounds."

What Becomes of Reporters.

Julian Ralph, a well-known New York newspaper man, in an article in the Epoch on "What Becomes of Reporters?" furnishes these data: About thirty men reporting in New York fifteen years ago are still reporting, and more than half that number died in the harness. In the same time possibly as many as 150 men drifted into the business, made no mark, and drifted out. Of 250 or more reporters the writer had known in New York 30 are still reporting, 50 others are in journalism and 20 of the remainder, who are now in other callings, are conspicuous before the public. The daily press of New York employs about 350 reporters. Mr. Ralph concludes that journalism seems to have but a small outlet into commercial callings.

Dunning the Doctor.

Office Boy—"Please, sir, here's a man to see you."

Impecunious Doctor—"Healthy man?"

Office Boy—"Very much healthy. Got something in his hand looks like a bill."

Impecunious Doctor (struck with a brilliant idea)—"Let him come in. I'll give him 50 cents on account: he will faint, and I'll charge him $2 for reviving him."—Time.
